Land Where Pigeon Is Located Traded for Shotgun

The Pigeon Progress from Sept. 26, 1947

Where seventy or eighty years ago there was nothing but marsh land, today is Pigeon.

In 1883 there was one building which was located just south of the present depot across the Pere Marquette track. It was torn down about 12 years ago. About 1881 there was also the farm home of Henry Moeller, Sr. and it was located where the former Charles Wittwer cheese factory stood. Another was a little building just east of the home now occupied by Harry Haist. It was erected by John Glosser, an old river driver on the Pigeon river, who owned the forty acres which, is now Main Street and south of Michigan Ave. One story is, that he traded the property for a shotgun and he is reported to have said that while the shotgun wasn't worth a dam, the fellow, he made the trade with was stung.

When the tracks of the Pontiac, Oxford and Northern Railroads were first laid through this section in 1882 there was little belief that a town would ever be built at this point because of the fact that the town of Berne only lay one mile to the north. The coming of the Saginaw, Tuscola & Huron Railroad down through this section in 1861, however, changed the plans and ideas and there were those who believed that the intersection of the two railroads would be a desirable location for a town. Charles Applegate, the first station agent in Pigeon, induced John Nitz, a farmer living south of Pigeon, to plat what is now known as the Nitz & Applegate addition. He erected the first store building in Pigeon, and carried a small stock of merchandise. This was in 1887. He then sold the building which was located where the Gulf (up-town gas station) is now to Leipprandt Bros, of Berne, who opened up a branch store. In 1881 Joseph Schluchter, who was also at Berne, opened up a branch store in a building located about where Schumacher's meat market is now.

Among the early buildings was the Arlington Hotel, erected by Herman Kleinschmidt. Later in 1889 the hotel was sold to George Winter, who conducted the hotel for a number of years until he sold out to Robert McElmurray and Lee Elenbaum.

In 1889 Herman and Albert Kleinschmidt purchased the Schluchter building and put in a line of general merchandise. It was in 1888 that John Diebel built his saw mill; that the union depot built; that George F. McNiel erected a building, on the lot now occupied by the Gem Theater, and operated a store. In 1889 C. C. Heineman, purchased the building and for about six years conducted a furniture and undertaking business. About this time William Goff opened up the first harness shop in Pigeon on the location of the building now occupied by Lyman Gregory's furniture store.

The post office was located in Pigeon in 1888 with Albert Kleinschmidt as postmaster, which he held with the exception of four years during Cleveland's second administration, when his brother Herman was the postmaster for four years, until George Anklam was appointed under president Wilson's first administration.

The first church, the Catholic, was erected in 1889, on the lot now occupied by Maust's Super Market. The English M. E. and Presbyterian churches were built in 1892, The Masonic Temple is now on the location of the Presbyterian church.

In 1891 a creamery was erected but was destroyed by fire a year later. And for a few years later Charles Wittwer ran a Swiss cheese factory

Local Boxers Compete at Port Huron

Among the amateur boxers to compete for laurels at the National Guard boxing show at Port Huron, were Gerald Jamieson and Willard Kuhl. Both young men gave good accounts of their fistic abilities.

"Gerry," weighing in at 130, gained a unanimous decision over Lincoln Cline, 135.

Willard, who tipped the scales at 136, was not quite so fortunate when he had for an opponent Larry Wooley, 138, last year's state champion. Even though Wooley won the bout, Willard was commended for his good boxing and sportsmanship. Many fans disagreed with the officials' decision.

Mayor "Clif" Bailey furnished transportation for the boxers and was accompanied by Dave Bailey, Peter Dixon and Kenneth Rathje. Bert Elliott, of Caro, acted as second in the absence of manager Don Hunter.

"If Only The Walls Could Talk" The "Annual Report"

By Denny Esch, Pigeon Historical Society President

March is the Annual Meeting of the Historical Society with the election of officers, committees appointed, projected budgets and projects for the new year ahead, and of course the "Annual Report".

All was going well, I got my committees appointed, election ballot printed, meeting dates set, budget done for board approval . . . and then . . . procrastination sat in. Do I really need to report on how great of a job the members of the Pigeon Historical Society really do?? Do I really need to report that nearly 500 people follow us on Facebook daily?? Doesn't everyone know that we post "Past Local History" nearly 3 times a day?? Do I really need to report that nearly 350 plus adults tour the Museum annually?? Do I really have to explain why we are the "Number One Choice Stop" for school age field trips?? Doesn't everyone already know that we print a quarterly "Recorder" with nearly 450 being circulated?? Hasn't everyone already seen our web site?? Hasn't everyone been in the Woelke Research Center looking through the hundreds of books and records available to them on finding their heritage??

When the procrastination subsided and I took a deep breath, I included in the "Annual Report", what it took to get where we are today. . . "The community support of the Pigeon Historical Society, is the best anywhere in the county. Year after year the Business Membership and Individual Supporters have provided hundreds of dollars annually to help support our summer help and we "Thank you" for that. When a major project was undertaken, the support was always there, and we "Thank you" for that too.

Last November the Village of Pigeon voters supported the passage of millage for the Pigeon Historical Society. The millage supports the purpose of the Society . . . to discover, collect and preserve the History of Pigeon and the surrounding area , , , and provide accessibility to those who wish to examine it . . .

"Thanks you" voters of Pigeon for your additional support . . . something special is about it happen. . . .

A Kid Growing Up On Saginaw Bay Rescue In The Rush Lake Quicksand

Part 12 in a final series by Jim Leinbach

The drama unfolding this late summer day on the waters of Rush Lake is historically known as "THE RUSH LAKE TRAGEDY." It received little print coverage in those days but the legend of this horrible event was passed down in the households of many who were directly and indirectly affected by its results.

On that day, shrill screams and cries rose up from the rushes on the west shore where people were being mired in the quicksand in their attempt to rescue the two boys who had gone fishing on foot. Our own crew was perched on the bottom of their overturned boat attempting to cinch the anchor rope to the wrists of two adults who had managed to swim to their craft. The situation had turned desperate and was about to become worse. The old boat the kids used was a 1930's design made completely of wood. It had no modern flotation equipment nor did it contain any life jackets. With the boys clinging to the bottom and the two adults frantically pulling on the rope, the boat tipped to the side allowing the air pocket under the boat to escape rendering it incapable of staying buoyant. In an instant the boat turned upright, immediately filled with water, and slowly disappeared into the limitless depths of Rush Lake pulling the two adults who had their hands tied to the anchor rope with it. The contorted horror on the adult's faces as they sank out of sight was etched into our lad's minds forever, and sensing their own peril, the three kids began swimming madly the hundred yards toward the campground. The relief the boys felt when they could touch the sandy bottom off the campground was immeasurable. Exhausted and in shock themselves, they flopped down on the sandy shore gasping and crying while in the background the yelling and screaming of the adults pierced their ears. Several moments passed before the kids staggered up toward the makeshift picnic tables where more sobbing adults and children were either yelling instructions, prostrate on the sand in grief, or kneeling and praying.

In the distance the wail of a siren was heard and quickly police and civilian cars were sighted racing wildly through the woods toward the north shore. Several men in hip boots exited the cars and tore madly to the west shore in the direction of the screaming mothers and fathers. Our boys did not join in the chase. They sat white-faced near a camp fire, teeth chattering despite the heat, saying nothing, and wiping tears that continued to flow.

As evening approached the police and rescuers began to trickle back toward the picnic area. Long poles had been cut from the woods to build drags and pull the dead. The bodies of the two boys who had attempted fishing from the west shore were never found. A total of four adults had perished in the rescue attempt and only two of them were returned to the site; the other two were lost as the boat sunk and were never recovered. Courage and love for their fellow man motivated the rescuers and survivors, and it was God's will that decided for the rest. The weeping and sobbing among the folks on that beautiful evening was heartbreaking to hear.

Since the Rush Lake Tragedy, several swimmers, duck hunters, and fishermen have met their end in the lake. It's a place the settlers avoided if possible, and that mentality exists to this day.

Our lads never returned to the lake after that day. To have gone back would have stirred memories that must be put away in order to move on. The boy who had helped tie the adults to the boat with the anchor rope never forgave himself for their deaths and those thoughts haunt him to this day.

Pigeon

In 1890 Pigeon which up to that time had been slow in growth, took a new lease of life, and from that time until the present, development and advancement has been apparent each year.

In 1890 Liken & Bach of Sebewaung purchased the John Diebel saw mill and converted it, into a stove and heading plant which they operated until 1890 on the site of the present Pigeon; Lumber Co. After disposing of his saw mill Mr. Diebel built his planing mill in 1890 on the present site of the Diebel Auto Co. Sometime later the plant was destroyed by fire, but was subsequently rebuilt and for a number of years was conducted by Charles Prast until after the second fire.

In 1895 Joseph Schluchter and Leipprandt Bros. moved their interests to Pigeon, the latter erecting the same year a grain elevator. The S. T. & H. Railroad Company also built an elevator about the same time. It was in 1895, too, that Wallace & Orr Co., of Bay Port, erected a building and put in a stock of general merchandise and one year later they sold the store and property to Joseph Schluchter. This building occupied the site of the present building owned by J. W. Leipprandt & Son.

In 1895 Henry Moeller Sr. platted what is now known as the north end of town, and the Crawford Est. plat was also recorded about the same time. The Maccabee hall was also erected about the same time. The same building is now used as a hardware store by John Diebel. The Hotel Heasty was also built in 1895 by William Heasty and John A. McLean. McLean occupied what is now the Hotel Vollmer bar room for a grocery and hardware. The third floor addition, on the west of the hotel, was erected in 1914. Following Mr. Heasty, those who conducted the hotel in the early days were George S. Farrar, O. M. Brooks, Laughlin & Bowell, Geo. C. Powell and Charles Schneck.

Frank Hubbard & Co. established the Farmer's Bank in 1895 which was the first bank. F. W. Merrick was the cashier. In 1906 Arnott & Marks of Sanilac county opened up the Pigeon State Bank which was absorbed by Hubbard interests in 1908.

The first Pigeon school was erected in 1896 at a cost of $5,000. In 1916 the building was destroyed by fire and the present building completed the following year. Eleven years ago the gym was erected.

In the 1880s there were no hard surface, roads in the county and only a very few miles of gravel that were poorly built.

Family Photos - Part Of Community's Heritage

The Pigeon Historical Society has a large collection of historical postcards and photographs. Many of these images have been enlarged, and are on display in the Depot Museum and the Arthur J. Woelke Historical Research Center. We are always on the look-out for other pictures that are not in our collection. It is true that a picture is worth a thousand words, and we are in search of those images.

If you have family photographs which show something that you would consider of interest to the community, please contact a board member. We will be holding scanning events again this summer.

We are always looking for old photographs, negatives or slides, and old postcards like the one shown here. If you have any old boxes or albums of pictures, don't throw them away until we are given the opportunity to view them for potential inclusion into our collection.

Call the museum at: 989-453-3242, Duane Wurst at 989-545-5240, or any board member for more information.
